The Phenomenon of Structural Similarity in the Poetry of Mahmoud Ismail

Ali-Allah Mohamed Ahmed

Abstract

Mahmoud Hassan Ismail is a very talented poet who employs a variety of techniques and expressions in his poetry. The aim of this study is to compare between two different styles that he skillfully utilizes in his poems. The first style is related to lexical similarity in structures while the second is concerned with content similarity. Content imposes certain parameters on structures, consistently creating mutual attraction. The researcher surveys both levels in his approach to selected texts.
